

StateCollege.com

A word from our Ad partners

≡ MENU

Home » News » Local News » Police And Crime News »

State College Contractor Begins Jail Sentence in Wage Theft Case

By Geoff Rushton - May 10, 2023

Local News | Police and Crime News

The owner of a State College-based mechanical contractor began serving a jail sentence this week, two years after he pleaded guilty to charges that his company underpaid workers' wages and benefits for prevailing-wage jobs over five years.

Scott C. Good, the founder and owner of Goodco Mechanical, reported to Clearfield County jail on Monday after state Superior Court in February upheld his conviction and sentence of four months to two years in jail.

Good's attorneys informed the court at the time that he did not intend to file any further appeal. Prosecutors from the state attorney general's office subsequently filed a motion to revoke Good's bail and order him to report to prison.

A word from our Ad partners

"While this is not the outcome Mr. Good had hoped for, he is prepared to put this behind him," defense attorney James Clancy said. "He looks forward to returning to his family and his employees. We sincerely thank the community and Mr. Good's friends for their continued support."

Good and GoodCo were initially charged in 2019 with more than 200 counts following a 21-month grand jury investigation prompted by allegations that they violated the state's prevailing wage law by paying skilled trade workers at a lower rate than required on a $16 million PennDOT project in Clearfield County and public projects in other counties.

ADVERTISING

Most of the charges were dropped as part of a plea agreement, and Good pledged guilty to five misdemeanor counts of theft by failure to make required disposition of funds.

Good was accused of directing journeyman electricians and plumbers to record portions of their work hours as lower paid laborers. The company also was accused of crediting itself hourly vacation benefits employees did not use in order to reduce the amount it had to pay toward fringe benefits.

The Pennsylvania Prevailing Wage Act requires contractors on projects that receive state or federal funding to pay the same hourly wages and benefits based on region and job classification.

It was the first time prosecutors pursued criminal charges in a prevailing wage matter, which is usually handled through administrative procedures outlined by the Department of Labor and Industry. His attorneys said at the time of the sentencing that Good, who had no prior record and who paid $64,000 in restitution, should have been given probation.

Good appealed on multiple grounds, including that the court lacked jurisdiction over violations of the Prevailing Wage Act, that the act was unconstitutionally vague as a basis for criminal prosecution, that Clearfield County Judge Fredric J. Ammerman abused discretion and that the sentence was the result of bias. At sentencing, Ammerman called white collar crime one of his "pet peeves over many years of doing this, both as a prosecutor and as judge."

A panel of Superior Court judges rejected those challenges in upholding the sentence. Ammerman, they wrote, did not issue a predetermined sentence based on the crime, but sentenced Good within the standard range despite suggesting the aggravated range might be appropriate.

A word from our Ad partners

A word from our Ad partners

Email

StateCollege.com Breaking News

SIGN UP

Around The Web

Doctor: Your Hair Will Grow Like Crazy (Try This Tonight)

ReGrow

This Will Be the Hottest Gift This Year: Slashes Heating Bills!

HeatPro

Car Wash Owners Don't Want You to Know About This Vacuum

CleanPro

Neuropathic Pain? New Device 'Dissolves' the Root Cause - Watch

neuroPro

This Seat Cushion That Feels Like Sitting on a Cloud

Dotmalls

Have an Enlarged Prostate? Urologist Reveals: Do This Immediately (Watch)

Healthy Nation

The Coolest Gift for kids' Birthdays and Holidays

Dotmalls

Say Goodbye to Handheld Magnifiers, step into a New Era of Magnification

Keilini

A 60-year-old Grandmother Designd a Bra That's Popular Around the World

Sursell

A word from our Ad partners

65°^F

Mostly sunny

HEALTH & ACTIVITIES

See All

Grass Pollen

Low

State College Weather

A word from our Ad partners

WHAT'S TRENDING?

- 1 University Park Airport Renamed State College Regional Airport
- 2 Poorman's ALLar-22: Shelling Maryland, Spying Michigan and Frustrating Franklin (Again)
- 3 State College Police Searching for Missing Teen

UPCOMING COMMUNITY EVENTS

15 STOMP
Nov 7:30 pm EST

16 Light Up Night
Nov 5:00 pm - 8:00 pm EST

VIEW CALENDAR

RECENT COLUMNS

Penn State vs. Indiana Takeaways: Your Expectations vs. James Franklin's Reality, All 22 of the Them

We All Grieve

Sign Stealing Is a Long-Time Practice Across College Football

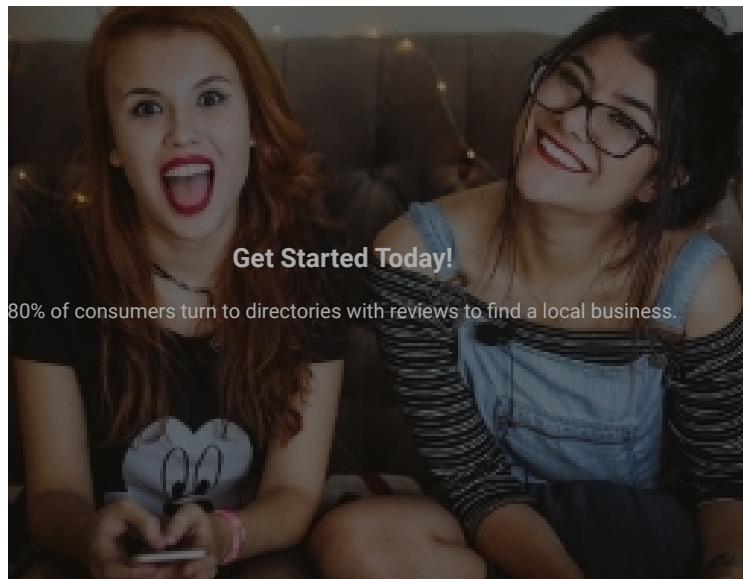

LOCAL VEHICLE OF THE DAY

2022 – Honda – CR-V

$30,488.00

BOBBY RAHAL

FAVORITE LINKS

Apartments

Search Local Cars

Classifieds

Community Calendar

Gas Prices

Movies

Obituaries

Restaurants

FACEBOOK

LIKE

INSTAGRAM

FOLLOW

FOLLOW

YOUTUBE

SUBSCRIBE

StateCollege.com provides local news, entertainment, and information for State College, PA. We offer the latest breaking news and videos straight from the Centre County region in Central PA.
SEE NEWS HAPPENING?

220 Regent Court, Suite B, State College, PA 16801

Contact us: info@statecollege.com

© Copyright 2000 – 2023 | StateCollege.com® | All Rights Reserved | State College, PA – Centre County – Central Pennsylvania – Home of Penn State University

This site is protected by reCAPTCHA and the Google Privacy Policy and Terms of Service apply.